DESIGNATION: Content Writer

NATURE OF ENGAGEMENT: Contractual, 3 months

JOB PROFILE

Barefoot College International is looking for a Content Writer for a prestigious project, details of which are given below. The incumbent should have excellent writing skills and storytelling ability to simplify technical content into engaging story-based and explainer texts for poorly educated rural individuals. The ideal candidate should also have good organizational and interpersonal skills and will be expected to work closely with a team of project managers from varied backgrounds, experience, skill and knowledge levels.

The project involves making technical training more accessible to rural audiences. The present training content exists as technical SOPs, research papers, corporate powerpoint presentations and such documents aimed at a highly educated and qualified audience. BCI is playing the role of demystifying this knowledge for poorly literate rural audiences, making it engaging through story-based content. The topics in the content are primarily agro-based (starting with banana cultivation and dairy farming techniques) but also extends to ancillary topics necessary for adult empowerment, such as leadership, women rights, environmental conservation, sanitation and health. The success of this project shall lead to livelihood improvement of 1000+ rural farmers in the short term, and potentially millions in the long term.

The final transformed and broken down content shall be in multiple formats, such as classroom session plans, booklets supported with illustrations, display material, self paced courseware. The Content Writer shall be responsible for writing accurate, proofread, easily understandable texts for all of the above for low-literacy audiences such as farmers.
